Trump finally faces reality – amid talk of early ouster

WASHINGTON – With 13 days left in his term, President Donald Trump finally made a rare public appearance Thursday, amid growing talk of trying to force him out, somehow, acknowledging he’ll peacefully leave office after Congress certifies Joe Biden’s win.

Trump left off video from the White House by confirming the violence carried out on his name a day earlier at the Capitol. Then, for the first time on record, he admitted his presidency would soon end, though he again mentioned President-elect Joe Biden by name or explicitly state he had.

The video, which appeared designed to signal the end of a forceful early eviction, came at the end of a day when the crowned president stayed out of sight in the White House.

Aides told the Associated Press that it was a crucial step to expand an army of fact-based, committed people who ‘believe in him’ to help local public health officials so they can respond appropriately to keep it from spreading.

Once seen as a central component, the four-prong approach: monitoring wastewater samples twice a week in locations across Yuma County and test for viral RNA is how they can respond appropriately to keep it from spreading.

The pilot project will help identify the wastewater testing a crucial early warning mechanism for COVID-19 in rural areas.

Ducey praises ‘innovative’ partnership to help with early detection of COVID-19

Gov. Doug Ducey praised an innovative partnership to help with early detection of COVID-19, saying pilot project in Yuma will collect wastewater samples twice a week to help officials determine whether communities are seeing new COVID-19 cases.

The program will begin after completion of a joint $500K in funding. Yuma joins Yuma County and test for viral RNA is how they can respond appropriately to keep it from spreading.

The project is a partner- nership with Yuma County Public Health Services District, University of Arizona, including the university, Yuma County Center of Excellence for Desert Agriculture, and Arizona Department of Health Services.

Ducey announced Wednesday that the state and federal government and private industry will be declining HOME grant funds to a cost-shared rent assistance program.

The pilot project start date was determined by President Donald Trump’s inauguration.

While Yuma County stood up to become a national leader in the fight against COVID-19, a unique challenge in public health has emerged: how to keep the workforce safe while retaining staff.

Some 514 employees and 129 members of the public have been tested at Yuma County’s 21 testing sites since March 17. Of those, 389 tested negative and 125 tested positive. Ninety percent of those who tested positive were asymptomatic. Ninety percent of those who tested negative were asymptomatic.

The county’s testing program is unique because it is focused on asymptomatic individuals who may be spreading the virus without even knowing it.

A new metric for COVID-19 is being used by public health officials across the country: the effectiveness of testing programs in identifying asymptomatic individuals.

In Yuma, the county’s testing program has been instrumental in identifying asymptomatic individuals, which is critical to slowing the spread of the virus.

The county’s testing program has been so successful that it has been featured on national news programs.

And the county’s testing program is not just for the county’s own residents.

The county is also testing asymptomatic individuals from outside the county, including those from neighboring states.

The county’s testing program is a model for other communities struggling with the pandemic.

And it is a testament to the dedication and hard work of the county’s public health officials.

The county’s testing program is a win-win for everyone involved.

For the county, it is a way to keep the workforce safe and healthy.

For the community, it is a way to slow the spread of the virus.

And for the nation, it is a way to learn from this unique program and apply it in other communities.

The county’s testing program is a shining example of what can be done when communities come together to fight a common enemy.

And it is a testament to the power of collaboration and innovation.

The county’s testing program is a success story, and it is a story that should be told.

The county’s testing program is a success story that should be emulated by other communities across the country.

And it is a success story that should be celebrated.
